How scoring works in Rummikub

- When a player lays down their last tile, the round ends. Every other player adds up the tiles left on their rack: each tile is worth its number, and a joker is worth 30.
- Each loser scores that total as a negative. The round winner scores, as a positive, the sum of all the losers' points.
- A round therefore always adds up to zero. After the agreed number of rounds, the highest total wins.
